SCHOOL OFFICE IS CONTESTED

Interpretation of Two Different Laws in County Superintendent Controversy.

GO TO ATTORNEY GENERAL

Stillwater, Okla., Dec. 23.—Inter-which it is claimed has a bearing on the case has caused some controversy over the office of county superintendent, in which all concerned are awaiting the outcome with some interest. W. R. Jones, who has been county superintendent, was elected county judge at the last election, to take office January 1. Miss Grace French was elected county superintendent the same time, but under the law ordinarily would not take the office until July. Jones resigned and recommended to the county commissioners to appoint another man to fill the vacancy, which he supposed would last until July.

Miss French on the advice of County Attorney Suman qualified for the office of county superintendent and has prepared to assume the duties on January 1. The matter was referred to Attorney General West. The advice was sent back to the effect that under the circumstances Miss French should qualify and take the office. The statute under which Miss French is advised says that if an office to which the person is elected becomes vacant before the time arrives for which he should qualify that person should at once qualify and take the office.

The statute under which the commissioners proceeded, at the advice of Jones, says when a vacancy occurs in the office of county superintendent, notice shall be given the commissioners and they shall as soon as practicable appoint one to fill the vacancy. Jones resigned and under the latter law the commissioners had authority to place some one in the office. Both sides claim they are right. Whether there will be any fight made on the proposition is not known.

STATE'S GREATEST WOLF HUNT IS PLANNED FOR NEW YEARS

Probably the biggest wolf drive ever planned in Oklahoma is to take place on New Year's day near Watonga, Ok. A total area of 25 square miles is to be covered in the hunt and it is the plan to clean out all the wolves in this portion of Blaine county.

The hunt has been planned on extensive lines and hundreds of men will participate in it. H. C. Lookabaugh of Watonga, who is lieutenant in charge of the drive, has announced a set of rules that will govern the drive. Captains and sergeants have been appointed to take charge of the men on each side of the big square which will be five miles long on each side at the beginning of the hunt. At the signal of shot guns fired promptly at 10 a. m., the long lines will begin to march toward the central round-up place which is composed of 100 acres of bottom land, eighty acres on either bank of the North Canadian river.

In order that no one will reach the final round-up place before the others a schedule of two miles an hour will be maintained. All the men will walk at this pace toward the central point watching carefully to see that none of the wolves or coyotes escape through the lines. When the round-up grounds are properly surrounded hundreds of dogs will be turned into the circle and the big war on the wolves will be declared. The dogs will chase the animals out of the grass and the men will shoot them as they break for liberty.

ROTARY CLUB TALKS

All the wolf hunters will walk with the possible exception of the captives who will be permitted to exercise their discretion about riding horses. Wolves and coyotes have become such a menace to the farmers of Blaine county that the people there have planned to get rid of them all at once if possible and the big wolf drive was planned as a result.

The threat of many a discourse is merely a yarn.

We knew a woman once who suddenly returned a borrowed copy of Mark Twain because she found it was humorous.

Hypnotism Can Stop Divorce And Promote Love, Says Dr. Quackenbos

New York, N. Y., Dec. 23.—Hypnotism is the latest demonstrated cure for divorce, and psychic intervention more than once has proved its ability to sway into the proper channels the emotions of a young man or woman hesitating at the edge of the marital precipice.

So declared Dr. John D. Quackenbos, psychologist, in the course of an address yesterday morning at the Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Park avenue and Eighty-sixth street, on "The Divorce Evil—Its Causes and Logical Cure."

"Even in those instances where the love of early days has become chilled," said Dr. Quackenbos, "and either husband or wife prefers another to the wedded partner, the aggrieved party is not without recourse. For it is possible to awaken loyalty through the silent influence of specifically directed suggestion given with a look and a thought or through the magnetic force of expressed superior quality that recalls to sense and duty and rivets the affections.

"The progressive incompatibility which leads to separation may be arrested even in an advanced stage of its progress and transferred into eternal love by psychotherapeutic methods, provided both parties, objectively induced to see the wrong and impulsion of divorce, acquiesce in the sincere effort of a qualified friend, to regenerate them through hypnosis.

In the providence of God I have permitted many times to restore harmony to discordant lives by appropriate dynamic suggestions, or impusions to right thought and action, offered to the subconscious mind. "Divorce can thus be prevented by hetero-suggestion, wherein lies an assured way of escape in cases where education is at fault and the language of disagreement has advanced beyond its whisperhood. And the same method may happily be employed where there is doubt or hesitation as to the wisdom of an engagement and marriage, to give the judgment proper representation in the expression of the emotions. By evoking an infallible judgment through this psychic intervention I have been instrumental in anticipating and so preventing more than one disastrous union."

Dr. Quackenbos discussed the method of psychological education necessary to bring the mind of upgrowing generations into a condition where perfect love may exist. "And the perfect marriage tie is unbroken in the Great Afterward," he continued, "for spirits cannot be divided that love and live in the same principle. Our Lord's words do not bear the interpretation that there is no marriage above, that could joined by God here are to be discovered by God in the world to come, but that those human personalities who have attained the angelic state cannot be parties to a marriage union that is merely animal or rational.

"Some marry for a time; some for eternity. Those who are so constituted as to be able to enter into the marriage union with more than one have will, I believe find marriage in Heaven as they have understood it on earth, a higher kind of sisterly and brotherly love."

GERMAN PRINCE SHOVELED COAL

Escapes From English Prison Camp and Works Way to Safety.

Copenhagen, Dec. 23.—When the Danish ship Strom steamed to the quay at Copenhagen three of her stokers were paid off. They received their money in the black palms and, looking at each other, smiled knowingly.

"Come and have a drink," cried the rest of the stoking squad, who line the bulwarks. "You're not going off with your wages like that, surely?"

Two of the three immediately took up the invitation, but the third, whose hands were raw with the work of the voyage from England, refused. He was chaffed because of his stinkiness, but told the crowd of stokers that he would be back in one hour's time and would like to see them then. They said they would wait for him, but they never expected he would return.

Return Well Dressed. In an hour, however, he did return, dressed in a fine suit and with well manicured fingers. He vaulted over the bulwarks. The others thought he was a joker till he began to speak.

"I have decided to present my wages to you all," he said, "for I don't need them now. You can go and drink to the health of Germany in the war. At the same time I want to thank you boys for the good time I have had with you. I'll never forget it."

"What is the truth about you?"

asked one. "I knew you were not a stoker. You're a swell, eh?"

"I don't know," was the reply, "but I don't mind confessing now that I never handled a shovel before. I wanted to get back to Germany where they think I am in one of the English prison camps. I escaped. Here's my card and my stoker's wages. Now since I have got a change of clothes at the embassy, I will be able to get home soon, and then I will soon be at the front fighting the English."

With that he went off, leaving the stokers dumb with surprise. When they recovered they looked at the card he had left. It bore the name of one of the princely houses of Germany.

JENNINGS MAY STAY IN WEST

Powell Has Sold Interest in "Beating Back" and Returns With Word That Oklahoma Beats Them All.

Having sold his interests in the motion picture production of Al Jennings' story, "Beating Back," B. H. Powell has returned to Oklahoma City from San Francisco. He went to the California city several weeks ago holding the state rights of the pictures, but took advantage of an opportunity to sell to San Francisco individuals. Powell is a member of the Powell-Crook Amusement company, operator of the Empress theater.

Al Jennings and F. R. Dickel, former manager of the Oklahoma City branch of the Mutual Film corporation, both of whom went to San Francisco with Powell are still on the coast. Powell states that Jennings will remain there to lecture with the "Beating Back" film and that Dickel will locate on the coast or go to Dallas.

In the opinion of Mr. Powell, Jennings will not return to Oklahoma City to run for mayor this spring as has been rumored, as he has several attractive offers from motion picture companies in California to become a movie actor. Jennings told Mr. Powell the latter says, that he probably will accept one of the offers. In any event it is stated that Jennings will remain on the coast for several months to lecture with the pictures.

Mr. Powell visited the Panama-Pacific exposition grounds and declares a wonderful attraction will be offered at San Francisco next year. "The buildings are magnificent," he said, "and most of them are almost completed. They are of a more permanent nature than those at the St. Louis fair in 1904, and the whole exposition is much larger. I asked a guide to show me the Oklahoma building and he pointed out the spot where only preliminary work has been started. But officials of the exposition are confident this state will be represented by a creditable building."

"One of the attractive fair features is the large acreage devoted to flowers and tropical fruits and shrubbery. Acre after acre is nothing but banks of flowers, groves of palm trees, and the like. This same idea is carried out on the streets of San Francisco and Los Angeles. There are more flower stores than cigar stands or soft drink fountains in the business districts."

"A 25-acre plot has been given over to a reproduction of Yellowstone Park and the result is amazing. Every feature of the park is reproduced. The railroad did this work."

What business conditions in Oklahoma are better than in California is the opinion of Mr. Powell. Also he said the middle west appears more thriving. One thing he noticed was that the passenger trains on the Santa Fe railroad between Oklahoma City and Newton, Kan., are more crowded than those between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

And some women are never happy unless they are heartbroken.
